After registration the tournament runs by the means of time, the tournament time-schedule and the tournament entrants:

- If the tournament manager, during registration, decided referees are needed to officiate registration is opened for such according to the tournament time-schedule. Invitations are generated automatically for people qualified to officiate.
- If the tournament manager decided that there is no need for officiating then registration is opened directly for the players. Invitations are generated automatically for the players.

As time changes the tournament continues according to the set tournament time-schedule

There currently are two tournament formats, a single elimination format with and without a third-place match. The forms that are used are essentially the same as those the badminton association uses. The players are entered on the form by their rating so that the best players do not meet each other in the first round.

The tournament is played during the time period indicated in the tournament time-schedule, which is from the starting time for the first venue reserved to the ending time for the last venue reserved for the tournament.

Precisely who will communicate the results when the match is over is determined when the tournament is created. Reports on results are automatically distributed to the users assigned this task during the tournament: Can be the officials, the tournament manager or the players of a match. Officials will also receive reports to provide other information from the matches.
